

Abstract

In Chonburi Province, the problem of the scour of the coastal area is happened from the human activities more than from the nature. The cause of the natural scour is about 1-5 meters a year and the scour is high on the monsoon season. Chonburi is the important resources of tourism and industry so that there is cooperation between local government and the private organization such as in Baan Amper has high scour in the monsoon season that makes people in the area have no place to live so that the responding organization has allocated new living area to people and also there is groins to protect the area from the scour as well.

In Rayong Province, there is a high scour on the coastal area. It is more than 5 meters a year such as in Mabtapud. The problem of the scour is from the human activities such as the building of sea port. To solve the problem, there are breakwater constructions along the beach for 2 kilometers, but the constructions do not as in the plan so the scour has been happened more and they also destroy the scenery of the beach. The conflict still is in trouble because there is not any organization respond to this problem.

In Chantaburi Province, the scour around the coastal area is from the nature on the monsoon season on May- September in every year. The problem has been solved by the local people if there were more damage, it would be asked for help.

In Trat Province, the scour is happened by the nature especially in the monsoon season around May – September in every year. The ratio of the scour is in an average about 1-5 meters per year. The problem has been solved by making the concrete wall along the coast with the cooperating of local people and local organization.

The human right problem that has been happened is from the right to get the information and the participation of local people. The government unit does not give any necessary information and clear details of the project to the people. In addition, the local people have not basic knowledge in human right so they have to follow what the officer tell them such as the relocation from the place that they used to live and it changes their life.

In conclusion, the first thing that should be done is to inform people about the human right and let them to participate to protect and preserve their living area.
