

Contents

Introduction:

The Environment, the People, and the State:

The Connecticut River Valley, 1790-1930 3

- 1 The Land, the River, and the People:
The Connecticut Valley, 1790-1830 11
- 2 From Milling to Manufacturing: From Villages to Mill Towns 33
- 3 Cities and Industry, Sewage and Waste 49
- 4 Pre-1860 Responses to Change: Views of the Public Good 63
- 5 Fish, the People, and Theodore Lyman:
The Moderate Approach 79
- 6 Health, State Medicine, and Henry Ingersoll Bowditch:
The Radical Approach 103
- 7 Cooperation, Conflict, and Reaction 119
- 8 Industrial Waste, Germs, and Pollution: The Battle
over Pollution 131
- 9 "Most Beautiful Sewer" 147
- 10 Farmers, Fishers, and Sportsmen 161
- 11 New England, the Nation, and Us 181

Notes 193

Index 257