

Table of Contents

Executive Summary	xi
Chapter 1: Introduction	1
1.1 Introduction to the ILO Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention (182)	1
1.2 Research objectives	2
1.3 Research methodology	2
1.3.1 Principles of rapid assessment	2
1.3.2 Justification of targets of the rapid assessment	2
1.3.3 The areas	5
1.3.4 The target group	6
1.3.5 Research methods	8
1.3.6 The areas of child labour origination	8
1.3.7 Data and sources of data	9
1.3.8 Data collection instruments	10
1.3.9 Data collection processes	11
1.3.10 Data analysis	12
Chapter 2: An overview	15
2.1 Background	15
2.2 Summary of the main research findings	16
Chapter 3: Background	19
3.1 Population and human capital	19
3.1.1 Demographic structure	19
3.1.2 Health	20
3.1.3 Education	20
3.1.4 AIDS infection	21
3.1.5 Drugs	22
3.2 Economy	22
3.2.1 Economic structure	22
3.2.2 Export	23
3.3 Political dimension	23
3.3.1 Changes in constitution and civil society sector	23
3.3.2 Gender roles	23
3.4 Legal framework	23
3.4.1 Current contexts	23
3.4.2 Child labour law	24
3.4.3 Ratification of ILO Convention 182	24
3.4.4 Organizations involved in children and labour	24
3.5 Literature review on child labour and action programmes	25
3.5.1 Related literature review	25
3.5.2 Children in the worst form of child labour	26

3.5.3	Laws, policies and projects to prevent and solve the child labour problem	28
3.5.4	The results of the National Seminar	28
3.5.5	Summary of the Thai context related to the child domestic labour situation	30
Chapter 4: Profile of the survey area: local context		31
4.1	Community infrastructure	31
4.1.1	Geographical conditions	31
4.2	Local economy structure	31
4.3	Demographic structure	32
4.4	Employment conditions	33
4.5	Labour migration	33
4.6	Human resources investment	34
4.6.1	Public health	34
4.6.2	Education	34
4.7	Results from the focused group discussions and interviews with parents	35
4.7.1	Background and trend of child labour exploitation	35
4.7.2	The trend of migration to become child domestic workers	36
4.7.3	The value of migration in the northeastern people	36
4.7.4	Attitude of parents and community towards child labour	36
4.7.5	Process and steps of becoming domestic workers	37
4.7.6	Parents' expectations and implications of child labour	38
4.7.7	Job migration motivation of children	38
4.7.8	Recommendations from the community in terms of policy implementation on child labour exploitation	38
4.8	Interview results of children and youth in the community	39
4.8.1	General living conditions of community children	39
4.8.2	Perception and opinions on child labour	39
4.8.3	Attitude of community children toward domestic child labour	40
Chapter 5: The pathways of child domestic workers in Bangkok		41
5.1	Profile of the children	41
5.2	Family economic status of child domestic workers	42
5.3	Health conditions of the child domestic worker's household	43
5.4	Working conditions of child domestic workers in Bangkok	44
5.4.1	Age when starting work	44
5.4.2	Job entry	44
5.4.3	Characteristics of work	46
5.4.4	Working conditions	46
5.4.5	Monetary returns, rewards and punishment	48
5.4.6	Dangers of work	51
5.4.7	Relationship with employers and others	52
5.5	Living conditions of child domestic workers in employers' households	52
5.5.1	Relationship status of child domestic workers	53
5.5.2	Employers' household size	53
5.5.3	Living conditions of child domestic workers	53
5.6	Attitude towards working and education of the child domestic workers	56
5.6.1	Attitude toward working	56

5.6.2 Attitude toward education	57
5.7 Life quality of the child domestic workers	59
Chapter 6: Conclusion, synthesis and recommendations	61
6.1 Analysis of the pathways to the worst forms of child labour	61
6.2 Analysis of other factors critical to policy design and implementation	64
6.2.1 The problem of chronic poverty in the rural community	64
6.2.2 The problem of patterns of production in Thai society	64
6.2.3 The problem of political will	64
6.2.4 The problem of unity and cooperation	65
6.2.5 The problem of empowerment and learning development at community and family levels in rural areas	65
6.2.6 The problem of parents' expectations	65
6.2.7 The problem of awareness-raising on the rights of child labourers	65
6.3 Policy recommendations	66
 Bibliography	 69
 Annex I: Domestic workers over 18 years old	 73
Annex II: Perspectives of the employers on child domestic labour	75
Annex III: Samples of essays on child domestic workers	79
Annex IV: Lessons Learned from the rapid assessment methodology	81
Annex V: Questionnaires and research instruments	83