

Contents

	Page
Foreword	iii
Executive summary	vii
1. Introduction	1
2. Women in labour markets in Asia	3
2.1. Gender inequities in labour utilization.....	3
2.2. Where and how Asian women work.....	6
2.3. Women in the informal economy.....	10
3. Impacts of the crisis on women workers	18
3.1. Women workers: the buffer workforce in good and bad times.....	18
3.2. Women agricultural workers buffeted by unstable prices and increasing cost.....	21
3.3. International women migrants less likely to have lost jobs.....	22
3.4. Women informal workers paid the highest price of the crisis.....	24
3.5. The “lived human experience” of crisis was harsher on women.....	29
3.6. Strong economic recovery but vulnerabilities persist.....	29
4. Gender-responsive rebalancing	34
4.1. The gendered implications of “rebalancing”.....	34
4.2. Gender-responsive rebalancing policies.....	39
5. Concluding remarks	50
References	52
Appendix:
Defining Informal Sector and Informal Employment.....	56
List of tables
2.1. Annual real GDP growth rate, employment growth rate and employment elasticities (average 2000-07), Asia and global, by sex.....	3
2.2. Youth labour force participation rate, youth employment-to- population ratio, youth unemployment rate and ratio of youth-to-adult unemployment rate by sex and region, 1999, 2009.....	6
2.3. Vulnerable employment shares, Asia, by sex, 1999, 2009 (% of total employment).....	8
2.4. Distribution of total employment by sector of employment, Asia and subregions, by sex, 2009.....	8
2.5. Informal Employment by country and sex, various years.....	11
2.6. Informal employment by employment status and sex (in percentages)	14
2.7. Informal employment by industry and sex, 2005, Bangladesh.....	15
3.1. Unemployment rates by region, country, sex, 2000-2009 (% of labour force).....	20
3.2. Unemployment rates by region and sex, 2008-2010.....	32