

Content

Foreword	(7)
Introduction on Balance and Emancipation	(21)
1. Social Science in non-Western milieu	1
2. Address to the People's Forum 1991	19
3. Democracy in development perspective	29
- Freedom and progress	30
- Capitalism and democracy	33
- "Liberalism" problematique	40
4. Democracy: Form versus Substance?	47
- What is democracy all about?	48
- Democracy versus development?	51
- Development in cultural straitjacket	54
- Authoritarianism in the making	59
- Looking ahead	65
5. Thai "National" Education	69
- Modern education in a cultural fix	71
- Loss and wastefulness	80
- Summing up	89
6. Science and Technology for Modernization: An Asian View	93
- Catching-up syndrome	93
- Question of value	97
- Spiritual way-out	100

7. Buddhism and Human Rights	107
- Introduction	108
- On social purpose and progress	113
- On the nature and value of man	119
- On individuality, freedom, and common interest	127
- Epilogue	139
8. Some Thoughts on Human Rights Promotion and Protection	149
- Third World predicaments	153
- Issue of negative and positive liberty	158
- Problem of institution building	165
- A postscript	173
9. Technological Self-Reliance and Cultural Freedom	175
- Introduction	175
- Structural nature of modern science and technology	179
- Rethinking "liberalism"	185
- Human Rights implications for developing nations	189
- Towards self-reliance for cultural freedom and creativity	195
- Conditions of self-reliant development: Asian case studies	203
- Concluding remarks	215
10. Problems of Development in Thai Political Setting	219
- Background	222
- The growth syndrome	226
- Imbalances	233
- Prospects: the problem of political institutionalization	243
- Summing up	265
Bibliography	269